CONNECTION

Interior of Jules Collins Jewellery.

Fashion from Library Woman.

IF YOU ARE HEADING TO Circular Quay, which is more than likely if you want to indulge in everything Sydney Harbour has to offer, make your way via Hunter Street to Macquarie Street. Here, in the Mitchell Wing of the State Library of New South Wales with its five historic galleries, is an absorbing exhibition entitled, The Governor - Lachlan Macquarie 1810 to 1821, being held until 10 October.

Nearby in Philip Street, opposite Chifley Square you'll discover some of Sydney's best shopping in The Wentworth Connection, a handsome arcade attached to the 5-star Sofitel Wentworth Hotel.

Boutiques such as Library Woman where everything from classic and unique jewellery, world-renowned Anne Fontaine Paris shirting, high quality suits and very special pieces designed and tailored in Sydney are to be found.

Here too is Baracca where the finest in ready to wear and the latest Karl Lagerfeld, just cavalli and giannfranco ferre labels are available just for him.

The art displayed at Wentworth Galleries has to be seen to be believed. Here more than 400 original artworks are represented in a cross section of Australian artists, from emerging talent to the most highly acclaimed.

At Adora Handmade Chocolates, feast your eyes and appetite on the truffles and the vibrant, fresh flavours. This award winning chocolatier who eschews fancy moulds and decorations, follows their customer's preference for chocolates with a more natural look.

High quality at very good prices, that's the hallmark of Jules Collins who sells beautiful pieces and custom made jewellery from her store in The Wentworth Connection.

Exquisite Australian-made lightweight wool and pure, natural garments can be found at Hedrena, a wholly Australian owned company that has created a unique range of apparel made from 100 per cent superfine merino wool. Summer and winter collections are stocked all year in a range of internationally fashionable colours with classic styling.
